Democrats Pick Kraft and DeWitt To Run the Party

Schirick and Finger Resign as Chairman and Secretary, Respectively, of County Committee—William R. Kraft and William C. DeWitt to Decide Democrats' Destines.

About 100 Democrats met at the county court house Wednesday afternoon at which time the Democratic County Committee met for the purpose of organizing and electing officers for the coming year. The meeting was brief and everything went off with clock-like precision, the friction which has marked many Democratic meetings of late being conspicuous by its absence.

Harry E. Schirick, who took up the reins as county chairman a couple of years ago, resigned as scheduled and William R. Kraft, twice candidate for Member of Assembly, was handed the leadership for the county. Harry M. Finger of Saugerties, who has been secretary for some time, also resigned and in his place William C. DeWitt was elected. William R. Johnston of Saugerties was elected treasurer.

Had Promised to Resign.

Judge Schirick, who in the past couple of years arose to the chairmanship and at the recent unofficial convention of the Democratic party was named as candidate for mayor of Kingston, said he was keeping his first political promise in resigning as chairman of the committee in order to devote his entire attention to the city. At the convention he stated that he would resign in order to devote his entire attention to the campaign and if elected would need all of his time for city affairs.

When the meeting assembled Chairman Schirick presided and after the roll call by districts by Secretary Finger the committeemen got down to business.

Resigns as Scheduled.

The first thing was a speech by Judge Schirick in which he called attention to the fact that he was resigning as scheduled. This he deemed necessary so that he might devote his entire attention to his candidacy for mayor and that if elected he would need to give his entire attention to the city affairs. His resignation was the outcome of his first political promise and he said that if he made any further promises he would also keep them but "a man who makes few promises is a sensible man." There was a bit of sadness in severing these connections, he said, because there had been such splendid cooperation from the committeemen during the time he had been at the helm in Ulster county but in all fairness to himself, and the city and the delegates he was compelled to resign and devote his attention to the city.

Sampson Names Kraft.

Following Judge Schirick's speech Mark Sampson arose and in a very colorful speech placed William R. Kraft in nomination to succeed Judge Schirick. Twice, Mr. Sampson said, Captain Kraft had been the standard bearer of the party for Member of Assembly and he had made remarkable runs although both times defeated.

The nomination was seconded by Thomas F. Coughlin and the election was unanimous.

Mr. Kraft then took over the meeting and promised to do everything in his power to put across a winning ticket.

DeWitt Elected, Reviews Career.

James H. Betts placed in nomination William C. DeWitt for the office of secretary after Secretary Finger had suggested that his resignation be accepted and a Kingston man elected in his place. Mr. DeWitt was also unanimously elected and following his election he addressed the committeemen. He reviewed his political career and told of some of his defeats but added that "if they trip me they do not fall me". He said he hoped to come back and then proceeded to hand bouquets to several of his political friends and followers.

Johnston to Handle Dough Bag.

J. J. McGrath placed in nomination William R. Johnston of Saugerties for treasurer of the organization and his nomination was the only one and the election was unanimous. Mr. Johnston also spoke, telling of the hopes of the party and the things which could be accomplished.

The Cigars Identified.

During the progress of the meeting Jacob V. Merrihew appeared with a large package and when unwrapped it proved to be cigars which were passed around to the menfolks. The cigars were donated by Judge Schirick.

Makes Several Speeches.

William R. Kraft took several opportunities to address the meeting, asking for the same excellent cooperation during his administration as had been given Judge Schirick. Judge Schirick also asked the committeemen to continue their assistance under the new administration.

Winfield Reveals His Plans.

Holt N. Winfield of Ulster Park, candidate for Member of Assembly again this year, was called on. Mr. Winfield briefly expressed his confidence in the coming election and said that he had already begun his campaign. He had started in southern Ulster and was working north. He said he expected to visit every portion of the county and devote a full six weeks to the campaign.

Plentiful Supply of Pictures.

Just before the meeting adjourned Thomas F. Coughlin called the attention of the delegates to the fact that Eugene B. Carey was not present and the reason was that he was in Europe attending the American Legion convention. However, he asked the support of all and it was suggested that in the absence of Mr. Carey the delegates carry home pictures of their candidate which could be secured from the chairman who had a goodly supply of cards.

Resolutions of Condolence.

Judge Schirick offered resolutions on the death of Mayor Morris Block, William F. Rafferty, Dr. W. E. E. Little, Judge James Jenkins and Judge John G. Van Etten. The resolutions were adopted by a rising vote.

The meeting then adjourned amid a plea for cooperation by the chairman.

Fight Pictures Shown in West

How Films Reached the Coast and Responsibility for Their Being Shown Is Task for Federal Men to Solve.

San Francisco, Sept. 29 (AP).—An outbreak of motion picture exhibitions showing the Tunney-Dempsey championship fight started government machinery at work up and down the Pacific coast today in an effort to find out how the films reached the west and to fix responsibility for their being shown.

In San Francisco one theatre operator and his entire staff were arrested when deputy United States marshals stopped the screen version of the fight in the second round. The house was crowded. Spectators were given refunds and allowed to leave.

W. P. Gullen, manager, and Sol Pincus, publicity agent, were held under bonds of $500 each on charges of "conspiracy to transport, ship and receive in interstate commerce certain motion picture films of prize fights and pugilistic encounters." The others of the theatre staff were released on their own recognizance. The maximum penalty for the offense is a $10,000 fine and two years in prison.

In Los Angeles a dozen theatrical and business men were ordered to appear before the Federal grand jury today in connection with the showing of the films there. Several Los Angeles and Hollywood theatres are exhibiting the films and government officials said they were not legally able to stop the shows.

The San Francisco theatres' legal counsel issued a statement saying the pictures had been printed in Los Angeles and that the theatre had violated no law in exhibiting them here.

Much interest is being taken all over Ulster county in the annual convention of the Ulster County Christian Endeavor Union which will be held at the Reformed Church in Stone Ridge on Saturday. A program of unusual interest has been arranged and it is expected that every society in the county will be represented at the convention.

The sessions begin Saturday morning at 10 o'clock and close with an evening service. One of the special features of the evening service will be "The Keeper of the Keys", rendered by the intermediate society members of the Highland Christian Endeavor Society.

The Rev. John E. Pickens, state field secretary, will attend and be one of the convention speakers.

A large delegation from the Kingston societies is planning to attend Saturday.

The president of the county union is Luther C. Dixon of Marbletown.

Doumergue Signs Pardon for Doty

Paris, Sept. 29 (AP).—President Doumergue today signed a pardon for Bennett J. Doty, American, who had served a part of an eight year prison term for desertion from the French Foreign Legion while on active service in Syria last year.

Doty, whose home was in Memphis, Tenn., will be under War Ministry orders to rejoin the first regiment of the Foreign Legion at Sidi-Bel-Abbes, Algeria. He has forty-nine months yet to serve of his original five year enlistment under the name of Gilbert Clare.

It is understood that he left the prison this morning en route to Marseilles whence he will leave on the first available transport for Algeria to begin serving the remainder of his enlistment.

The war ministry, it is reported, felt that while a pardon could be allowed under the circumstances, any release from his enlistment oath would tend to have a bad effect on discipline and that he must fulfill his contract.

Search for Willis Beach Spreads To Four States

Trooper Stationed on Guard at Home of Mrs. Lilliendahl—New Witnesses May Have Facts That Will Clear up The Mystery.

WILLIS BEACH.

Hammonton, N. J., Sept. 29 (AP).—A state trooper is stationed on guard today at the home of Mrs. Lilliendahl, in South Vineland, where she has remained since her release on $25,000 bail as a material witness to the shooting of her husband, Dr. A. William Lilliendahl.

Placed at the house at the direction of Chief Hudson, of Vineland, the trooper is under orders to watch the house constantly and to follow Mrs. Lilliendahl wherever she may go.

As the search for Willis Beach, South Vineland poultry raiser, charged with aiding in the slaying of Dr. Lilliendahl, spread to four states today, detectives disclosed that they had found new witnesses whose evidence may prove "an important link" in the solution of the mystery.

These witnesses, Mr. and Mrs. George Cavalier, were said to have told the investigators that while picking cranberries near where the elderly physician was slain they had heard a voice ring out in the stillness about the time the shooting was supposed to have occurred. The voice called "Yoo, hoo, yoo, hoo, yoo hoo," as though trying to attract the attention of some one nearby, the Cavaliers said. It appeared to come from a distance of about half a mile and they were unable to say whether it was that of a man or a woman.

Search Four States.

The search for Beach, who was under $5,000 bail as a material witness in the case and who disappeared shortly before state troopers arrived at his home to bring him here for possible identification by three Morrisville men, extended today to New York, Pennsylvania, Maryland and New Jersey. Police received word that a man answering his description had registered at a Baltimore hotel on Tuesday.

Edison Hedges, counsel for Beach, asserted that his client would be produced before the court or the grand jury, but that he would not turn him over to the state police or county authorities. Hedges was quoted as saying he did not know "exactly" where Beach was, but that he would be on hand "when wanted."

Prosecutor Louis Repetto and Assistant Prosecutor S. Cameron Hinkle, after a conference on Hedges's attitude, were undecided what action, if any, would be taken.

"I have a right to prosecute any one who obstructs justice," Repetto was quoted as having said. "But I am not ready to say whether I shall prosecute Hedges."

A description and pictures of Beach, who police assert, admitted authorship of the "Peggy Anderson" letters said to have been received by Mrs. Lilliendahl, have been sent to most of the larger cities.

Albany, Sept. 29.—The Public Service Commission Wednesday closed the proceedings relating to the elimination of the Saugerties Road and Burhans Lane crossings of the New York Central tracks, about two miles north of Kingston. The town authorities refused to take any steps to bring about payment of the town's charge of the proposed eliminations and the Commission closed the case as it is unable to make an order where restricted by law.

Rock Lodged in Tunnel Blocks W. S. Traffic

Running West Shore Trains on Erie to Newburgh—All Traffic Delayed 24 to 30 Hours—Blocking of Tunnel Holds Up All Trains.

The lodging of a large rock in the West Shore railroad tunnel at Haverstraw during the night has blocked all traffic over the West Shore railroad between Haverstraw and Newburgh. At the West Shore station here is was stated that all train service was being delayed from 24 to 30 hours.

The West Shore railroad has arranged with the Erie railroad to run all trains north and south bound over the Erie tracks. South bound trains are switched onto the Erie tracks at Newburgh, while northbound trains are switched onto the Erie tracks below Haverstraw and the trains arrive in Newburgh over the Erie line and there are again transferred to the West Shore tracks.

The West Shore railroad, as soon as it was found that the tunnel was blocked with the falling rock, had a large gang of laborers rushed to the scene and are busy today at work removing the obstruction from the tunnel.

As far as could be ascertained no one was injured when the rock fell, blocking both tracks in the Haverstraw tunnel.

Busses Carry Passengers.

Haverstraw, N. Y., Sept. 29 (AP).—A rock slide at the south opening of the Haverstraw tunnel, blocked both tracks of the West Shore line today.

Passengers were taken around the blockade by motor busses that ran between Congers and Haverstraw. One hundred and fifty men were working to clear the debris by nightfall.

A slide blocked one track near the tunnel mouth a few days ago. More rock fell on to the roadbed early today.

Lamp Lighter Sent Invitations

To 7,300 Communities Scattered Over The Face of The Globe To Participate In Boston's Celebration In 1930.

Boston, Sept. 29 (AP).—City officials faced the embarrassing fact today that 7,300 countries, states and municipalities scattered over the face of the globe have been invited to participate in Boston's tercentenary celebration in 1930 and all without their knowledge.

When Soviet Russia hastened to announce its acceptance, and when Germany and Denmark made inquiries concerning the scope of the affair, city hall officialdom was plainly stirred, but the full extent of the potential influx of honored guests was not apparent until William A. Ryan, Dorchester lamp lighter and some time janitor, calmly admitted authorship of the invitations.

He told amazed inquirers that every day for the past four and a half years he had sent out at least four of them. In fact, he figured that the current invitations could not number a single one fewer than 7,300 and it might be higher.

The impending celebration was news to Mayor Malcolm E. Nichols and other municipal department heads, as well as to Soviet Russia, whose resolution to send a delegation here first brought Ryan and his letters to light.

A flock of reporters discovered the self-styled "organizer and president of the World League of Cities" in his modest home. Ryan, who is about 40, is a thin, quiet, studious and bespectacled man, who evidently takes his self-appointed task of "lighting the world to a new freedom of peace, beauty and happiness with considerable seriousness.

"You see, it's like this," he told newspapermen. "Having been born in Boston and having made this great city my home all my life, I feel I have a perfect right to invite whom I please to the celebration three years hence which my city has been planning. Furthermore I owe no one an apology for what I have done, do I?"

Friends say that Ryan is intelligent and well read although admittedly somewhat erratic. He has paid the entire cost of preparing and mailing circulars out of his meagre savings.

Kiwanis Purse For Pastor Nelson

The Rev. W. P. Kemper, rector of St. John's Episcopal Church, this city, spoke on "Moral Courage" at the Kiwanis noonday luncheon today. The Rev. William J. Nelson, who recently severed his connection with the Evangelical Lutheran Church of the Redeemer as pastor, was present at the meeting which was his last in Kingston. His fellow Kiwanians expressed their deep regret of his going from Kingston and wished him much success in his future field. A substantial purse was presented to the Rev. Mr. Nelson by the club.

One of the important matters taken up at the Kiwanis meeting was the giving of a reception for the members of the Kiwanis Kapers cast. The date of the reception will be announced later.

Cardinal Hayes Visits Phoenicia

Class of 26 Confirmed by Archbishop —Parishioners Visit Rectory, Where Cardinal Was Escorted by State Troopers.

Patrick Cardinal Hayes, Archbishop of New York, administered the Sacrament of Confirmation to a class of twenty-six at St. Francis de Sales Church, Phoenicia, Tuesday, September 27. His eminence addressed the class on the principles of their religion and explained that the Sacrament of Confirmation made them soldiers of the Catholic Church and granted the necessary grace to make them devout in the practice of their religion.

The sponsors for the class were Miss Agnes Donohue and Eugene Gormley of Phoenicia. Within the chancel were seated priests who accompanied Cardinal Hayes, including his secretary, Father Donohue; the general of the La Salette Order, the Rev. Crozet of Rome, Italy; Provincial the Rev. Rosset of Hartford, Conn., and the Very Rev. Joseph B. Scully, V. F., pastor of St. Mary's Church, this city, and dean of Ulster, Sullivan and Dutchess counties, and nine other clergymen.

After the confirmation ceremonies the prelate and his party were escorted to the rectory of St. Francis de Sales Church by a contingent of State Troopers under command of Sergeant James Cunningham. Members of the congregation were privileged to present themselves to Cardinal Hayes in the rectory, residence of the pastor, the Rev. Father O'Flanagan, where they received the blessing of the Cardinal and kissed his ring.

The church was beautifully decorated in floral arrangements of hydrangeas and lilies that harmonized in a most artistic manner with the admirable oil paintings.

Will Investigate Troopers' Action

In Taking Wilmot Wagner Out of Pennsylvania to Belmont Without the Proper Procedure.

Corning, N. Y., Sept. 29 (AP).—Thomas F. Rogers, retained yesterday by the family of Wilmot Leroy Wagner, charged with murder of two State Troopers, today declared he would rigidly investigate the action of the arresting Troopers in taking Wagner out of Pennsylvania to Belmont, without proper procedure.

"If the information I have is correct," he said, "there has been a serious violation of law and the defendant has been deprived of his legal rights. I am now starting an investigation into the prisoner's being brought from Pennsylvania into New York state without the formality of extradition."

Mr. Rogers said that at this time he has no statement to make as to the defense of Wagner. He stated he was going to Belmont this afternoon to confer with District Attorney Walter N. Renwick, after which he would probably have something to say for publication. He did say that statements attributed to Wagner's accusation of others were untrue. "He is in no mental condition to do so," declared the attorney.

Portable Arsenal Owner Insane

Dono Joseph Raishlezo, who was picked up by State Troopers on the Ellenville-Kington road some time ago where he was found armed with various kinds of firearms, has been committed to the Middletown State Hospital. Judge Fowler after having the man examined found he was mentally unbalanced. Although armed to the teeth, Dono was not making any effort to use the portable arsenal. When taken in custody he had a large sum of money on his person. He was employed as a farm hand in the town of Wawarsing.

Governor Smith Will Talk at State Convention

Intends To Speak of Government From The Political and Financial Aspects—Nomination of Judge O'Brien Assured.

Albany, N. Y., Sept. 29 (AP).—Governor Smith, alone and individually, today lifted from the depths of political mediocrity a Democratic state convention which otherwise might well have gone down in the party's history as about the tamest gathering of its kind in recent years.

With no state-wide executive officers to nominate, with no great issues to debate, with no platform planks to set in order, the 1,100 delegates—minus the considerable number who sent their proxies—would have arrived in Albany with little prospects of enjoying any of the thrills that are wont to be associated at a state political convention. What actually happened was that they came apparently eagerly and each with two words on his tongue—"Governor Smith."

The change from mediocrity to suppressed excitement came when Governor Smith announced 48 hours before the gathering of the convention that he would speak before the delegates. The unusual interest arose from the fact that it was the first political speech the governor had scheduled since "Smith-for-president" clubs began cropping up in various parts of the country and especially since William Gibbs McAdoo, who locked horns with Governor Smith in the Democratic national convention 1924, announced that he was out of the picture so far as being a Democratic presidential candidate was concerned.

First Business Settled.

The first real business of the convention was settled at a conference of the state party leaders at the Executive Mansion last night, a conference which did not break until long after midnight.

At the conference it was decided that Warneck Kernan, of Utica, nephew of a former United States senator, should preside as both temporary and permanent chairman at the convention. It was also decided that there would be no attempt to draw up any party platform.

The Governor's Speech.

One of the chief subjects discussed was the contents of the governor's speech before the convention. The governor himself told his friends that he intended to speak of "government, from the political and financial aspects," which was taken to mean that he would have something to say about the Republicans—political—and something about his record in state office—financial.

One of the important decisions concerning the speech arrived at last night was that the governor should turn his verbal barrage against the proposed constitutional amendment to increase the term of elective state officials and state senators to four years and that of Assemblymen to two. Since the proposal in its present form is labelled "Republican," this decision was taken in the face of the possibility that it might influence the Republican state convention at Rochester tomorrow to look with considerably less favor upon the endorsement of Judge John F. O'Brien of New York, who will be the Democratic candidate for associated judge of the court of appeals.

Willing To Stump.

The governor announced some time ago that he would be willing to take the stump this year against the four year term amendment. His opposition is not to the principle involved, but to the fact that the present amendment provides for state elections in the same year as presidential, the Democrats maintaining that this gives their rival party a decided advantage in addition to tending to confuse state and national issues.

The chief official business of today's convention was the nomination for the vacancy of the court of appeals bench, caused by the elevation of Judge Cardozo to the chief judgeship and the retirement of Chief Judge Hiscock. Governor Smith named Judge O'Brien to fill the vacancy temporarily, and his nomination was assured.

Wishing to avoid embarrassing the governor, party leaders sought to circumvent Louis A. Cuvillier of New York, who said he would ask the convention to urge amendment of repeal of the Volstead act. The leaders decided there would be no platform at all. Cuvillier is chairman of the National Constitutional Liberty League.

FIND LABRADOR WHITE ELEPHANT

Newfoundland Is Awarded Rich Tract, Unable to Develop It.

Toronto, Ont.—Five months ago Newfoundland won by award of the privy council in London an area of 110,000 square miles in Labrador. But the question of what it is going to do with this potential kingdom remains unanswered.

Labrador's immense resources are unquestioned. Forests, mines and waterfalls on an almost inestimable scale await the exploiter. Grand falls on Hamilton river alone will produce 5,000,000 horse power.

But where to get the capital to make these resources productive is the problem.

Newfoundland, though the oldest of British colonies, is after all these centuries only a little community of fewer than 250,000 persons, and it has a national debt of $60,000,000.

Obviously it is impossible for such a community unaided to tackle the problem of Labrador. If foreign capital could be attracted the investment required might soon exceed the total present resources of the dominion and become uncontrollable.

The easiest way out would be for Newfoundland to sell Labrador, and tentative suggestions to that end are making their appearance. Nothing official, one must understand, but the man on the street in Newfoundland is quite outspoken.

"What to do with Labrador? Why, sell it," is the prompt answer. The privy council award was a great windfall which in his view ought to be realized on at once.

Suggest Sale to U. S.

Who will buy? Well, Canada might purchase. If Canada is coy then why not the United States. One may hear Newfoundlanders talk glibly of selling Labrador to the United States for $100,000,000. The international complications that might arise do not bother them at all.

Neither does Uncle Sam's lack of interest, nor the fact that he paid only $7,000,000 for Alaska and did not think much of his bargain even at that figure.

More thoughtful persons count Uncle Sam out as possible purchaser. Even if he were willing they regard the privy council award as something more than a legal decision. It implied also a trust, conferred by the head of the family.

A sale to Canada at any such figure as $100,000,000 is also out of the question. Canada was chagrined at the loss of Labrador and would like to have it but not at any such price, at least as long as she has so much other undeveloped resources.

During the early negotiations on the Labrador dispute the commission did hear a casual suggestion that the whole thing might have been ended by the province of Quebec buying out Newfoundland's claim. The sum suggested was not $100,000,000 but $5,000,000 or $6,000,000.

If such an offer had been definitely made Newfoundland might have accepted, for the huge costs of the investigation and appeal were quite a gamble for Newfoundland.

Several Proposals Made.

Later on there were some tentative proposals to sell made by Newfoundland to the Canadian government. Under one plan Newfoundland proposed to sell all Labrador for $30,000,000. Another was to reserve a three-mile strip around the coast for the 29,000 Newfoundland fishermen who use it, and to sell the rest for $15,000,000. Ottawa expressed a disposition to deal only on the basis of acquiring the whole territory but thought the price too high, particularly as Ottawa had been advised that it could win all the hinterland for nothing by going to the privy council.

The privy council's award has changed the complexion of the matter. The lowest sum now heard mentioned is $50,000,000 and assurances that Newfoundland citizens would get inalienable rights to the fishing and other privileges they now enjoy in Labrador.

Quebec is the logical owner of Labrador because of contiguity and because it provides an outlet inward to the St. Lawrence and to manufacturing centers as an alternative to the winter-bound sea coast.

But when Premier Taschereau heard the privy council's award he shrugged his shoulders and remarked: "It's too big for Quebec now." Further negotiations as to purchase will have to be conducted direct with the federal government. But both Quebec and Ottawa are silent.

Meantime Newfoundland, guarding her heritage, is granting no concessions in Labrador.

Said Elmer Wood to Frank Stone while on a hunting trip in the Canadian Rockies.

Martin Johnson,
famous African Explorer,
writes:

"While trailing big game in Africa, I have never been without my Lucky Strike Cigarette. Once on the Abyssinian border my shipment of them from America missed us, and I was miserable until the natives followed our tracks across the Kaisout desert to Nairobi with my precious cargo of Luckies. After 4 years of smoking Luckies in wildest Africa, I find my voice in perfect condition for my lecture tour in America."

You, too, will find that Lucky Strikes are mild and mellow—the finest cigarettes you ever smoked, made of the finest Turkish and domestic tobaccos, properly aged and blended with great skill, and there is an extra process—"It's toasted"—no harshness, not a bit of bite.

Sports Duds Aid in Mad Scramble

Convenient Dress Makes Inroads Upon Milady's Delicate Apparel.

Sports clothes, which have been making such tremendous inroads upon delicate tea gowns and other feminine apparel this year, reflect the present madly rushing age, says Jean Charles Worth, head of one of the largest Paris fashion houses on the Rue de la Paix.

"One of the most important items which is steadily increasing the favor shown sports clothes is that they save time," said Mr. Worth in an interview with the Paris representative of the Woman's Home Companion. Women have little time these days to give either to their dressing or the selection of their clothes. In fact I often wonder if they think about their clothes at all—if they don't just rush out and buy them when they actually need them, without thinking.

"In spite of the fact that we design and make up one or two hundred models each season, and it is easier and quicker to make a selection than it was twenty or thirty years ago, I still feel that to be really well dressed a woman must give more time and thought to her clothes and her type than she does today.

"This extraordinary demand for sports clothes has forced us to make a feature of them for the first time this year, although they are by no means a new idea," said Mr. Worth.

"The bicycle first brought in the short skirt and the sports type of dress.

"When the automobile succeeded the bicycle, the sports costume and the short skirt disappeared again for a season or two. Women at first did not drive their own cars and freedom of movement was not so essential in their clothes as it is today. The motors were not so well heated then as they are now and the long skirt was more comfortable than the short one.

"A growing interest in tennis and golf really brought back the sports costume as it is today. It has become more and more practical, more and more becoming, until now it is really an all-day costume.

"The passing of home life, too, has had much to do with the general acceptance of the sports costume for all-day wear. The old idea of the home is passing even here in France. A woman steps into her motor in the morning, stops somewhere for lunch, somewhere else for tea and only returns to her home to dress for dinner, or possibly to go out for dinner. She has no time to change for the afternoon or for tea; her simple costume of the morning must serve for the entire day.

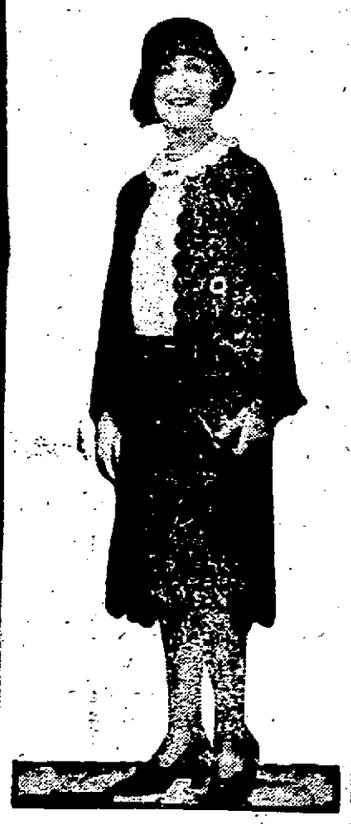
"French women have been slower to accept the sports costume for all-day wear than were the women of the States. To them the sports dress was only for sports, actual tennis, golf, or motoring. They are coming to it, although they are inclined to make it a little more feminine than do the women of the United States.

"In driving a car, for instance, short skirts are necessary, but trouser skirts are still more comfortable, therefore trouser skirts have been evolved and are being worn.

"Women demand comfort and no restrictions in their clothes, so we make sleeveless sports costumes.

"Personally, I do not like to see a woman's skin burned and tanned by the sun, but today it is smart to have one's skin burned, and that is the second reason for not having sleeves in a tennis or golf costume any more than in a bathing suit."

Black Cloth Tailored Suit Offered for Fall



The tailored suit of black cloth is being shown for fall wear. The model consists of coat and skirt which are finished with small scalloped edges. A white crepe blouse trimmed with pin tucks is worn under the coat. Black felt hat, black patent leather shoes and a novelty handbag in colors complete the costume.

Sophistication

Bernice had some of her little friends in for luncheon the other day, and among other things she had olives. She offered them to Effie, who said she did not like them, whereupon Bernice replied in a superior fashion: "Oh, I didn't like em myself at first, but you must accumulate a taste for them."

KINGSTON, N. Y., SEPT. 29, 1927

Wonder has been expressed that the disastrous airplane accident at New Brunswick, N. J., did not stop the crowds from taking advantage of the cheap airplane-ride rates offered, but railroad trains do as much business the day after a railroad accident as on the day before. Human experience tends to show that a serious accident is rarely followed promptly by another.

"'Everybody' is a Progressive nowadays; especially the Drys, who have proved it by regressing to the Koran."—New York Times. However that may be, it is an historical fact that Mahomet, in writing the Koran, drew from the New Testament but departed from it when he forbade even the temperate use of wine. Obviously he does not stand alone in his failure to perceive the prodigious difference between use and abuse.

At Verdun, in the defense of which 400,000 Frenchmen are said to have given their lives, Premier Poincare, paying tribute to the assembled Legionnaires, reminded them that the casualties of the twenty-two American divisions engaged at the front in 1917-18 amounted to 237,135 wounded and 49,909 killed. It is both interesting and useful to have such figures recalled in these forgetful times—if only to remind us of the blessings of peace.

An "exhaustive" study of "Girl Life in America" is summed up by one of the more prominent students with the statement: "I can never remember when the reprehensible behavior of young people, young girls in particular, was not the subject for grave apprehension on the part of older people." We can all accept that as a true picture of conditions, but who can believe that a study of American girls could ever be made "exhaustive?"

Secretary of the Navy Wilbur is reported as seeing in the recent failure of transatlantic flights evidence of the safety of this country from long-distance aerial attack. But in the present stage of aviation has anybody really feared the bombardment of our coast cities in the event of war by planes starting from Europe? Effective attack could be made only by planes operating from some armored base—possibly a great ship designed for the purpose—near our shore line, and the possibility of this has not been removed by the recent aerial disasters.

"TRUTH" ABOUT AMERICA.

There may be some basis for the old saying that one must go away from home to hear the news, but it would seem to be hardly advisable to go as far as Berlin and give ear to the reports printed in Rote Fahne, the German Communist organ, from which the following description of conditions in the United States is quoted:

"In the United States machine guns line the streets for the purpose of driving the workers into the factories and keeping them there for as many hours as it suits the capitalists. American women are going in for military training for the purpose of a Fascist revolution. Convicted murderers on the gallows buy their freedom with large sums of money. And in general America is a land of unemployment, starvation wages and intolerable housing conditions for the working masses.

It is worthy of note that the Germans, even the German Communists, are not to be credited with such marvelous truthfulness and accuracy. According to the Berlin correspondent of the New York Times, that extraordinary sheet, Rote Fahne, is financed and directed from Moscow—which seat of the Russian Soviet government claims to be the home of truth as well as the only home of real freedom, such small matters as political murders and tyrannical rule maintained by means of a "red" army being too unimportant for mention, let alone discussion.

A DRY SENATOR'S CHARGES.

There seems to be no end to the charges from high sources of bribery and corruption in the prohibition enforcement service. On the heels of the charges against prohibition officers made by John W. Grim, former Assistant Attorney General of the United States, come more of the same sort from United States Senator Charles C. Dill of the State of Washington. Mr. Grim declared that Federal, State, city and county enforcement officers are collecting $25,000,000 a day in bribes. Senator Dill says prohibition officers not only take bribes right and left but unhesitatingly admit the practice. "They say, of course," he quoted, "that they take the bribes in order to get evidence. The evidence is that agents keep most of the bribe money. From the amount of the bribe receipts turned in it appears to me that the chasers of the bootleggers are corrupt."

Moreover, according to Senator Dill, prohibition agents "are going up and down the country, breaking into people's houses without proper provocation," instancing the elderly farmer in Maryland who recently was shot dead while resisting a raid made without warrant, and declaring that agents in his own State "have been breaking into houses without warrants, destroying the property of people who had no more idea of violating the law than I have." As a remedy for these "unbelievable" things he would require all agents to furnish bond before they are employed, so that innocent victims may have some means of redress. It can not be claimed that this is wet propaganda, for Senator Dill is a dry from a dry State. Plainly he is shocked by what he has learned and speaks only in the interests of reform so notoriously needed.

ANOTHER CAUSE FOR ASTHMA

You have likely been reading about the wonderful cures now being made in cases of asthma.

You have also likely seen a victim of asthma during an attack, and although it is not immediately dangerous, it is most distressing, and must necessarily weaken the system to some extent.

Instead of sending these patients to a different or drier climate the physician now looks for some cause of this asthma. Many cases were found to be due to some condition of nose or throat, such as enlarged tonsils, and the division in the nose being bent over to one side too much. When these conditions were corrected the attacks of asthma stopped.

Other cases were found to be due to too much protein—meat, eggs, cereals—in the daily diet. Decreasing the amount of these eaten lessened the attacks or prevented them altogether. This protein may also be in the form of dandruff from horses or cats, from the pollen of plants and so forth.

But there have been cases of asthma where there were apparently none of the above causes, and physicians have been investigating these most carefully.

Dr. E. B. Strauss tells of a couple of cases which defied all the treatments until he tried hypnotism on them.

The first case, a boy of twelve years, had suffered with asthma for the previous nine years.

Dr. Strauss gradually gained the boy's confidence and as the boy was willing to help the doctor in the treatment, he consented to be hypnotized.

He was able to recall his past birthdays and talked and acted as a child would at each different year of his age.

The investigation showed that the asthmatic attacks centered round the emotion of fear and the idea of suffocation. He remembered that at the age of two, his nurse used to silence his cries by stuffing pieces of rags in his mouth.

After being restored to consciousness the asthmatic attacks ceased to occur.

The other case, a young woman, always had a dream before each attack.

"I find myself by the side of a brook near home, the brook overflows and engulfs me, when the water reaches my neck I awaken into an asthmatic attack."

She remembered, while hypnotized, that at the age of three having fallen into a steam and being rescued. She likewise has had no further attacks of asthma. These cases show us that some cases of asthma may be due to nervous shock in childhood.

DRINK-BY-DRINK DIARY ENLIGHTENS HISTORIANS.

Tucson, Ariz., Sept. 29 (AP).—With a little adobe saloon shack as his den, an Arizona Pepys of pioneer days has left to posterity an intimate, drink-by-drink story of the old west.

The chronicler was George O. Hand, California infantryman and Tucson saloon keeper. His quaint diary came to light recently when the archives of the Arizona Pioneers' Historical Society were rearranged.

Everything from saloon brawls to national politics apparently intrigued the interest of the frontier bartender, who frankly violated western traditions by drinking his own stuff.

Many of his entries were as terse as they were candid.

"Boys all tight. Hand included."

Among the excerpts for 1875 were:

"Thursday, January 7—I kept sober all day.

"Monday, March 8—Fine morning. Nothing new. Billy Harrison's head swelled. French Jo on a bust, raised a row with Billy Wall and got shot on the right side. Great excitement. TEXAS PROJECTS KANGAROO FARM.

Sherwood, Texas, Sept. 29 (AP).—Natives of Irion county are to have an opportunity to study the kangaroo hop at first hand.

Pink Rutledge, county judge and world traveler, has ordered three kangaroos from Queensland, Australia, and will run them on his ranch near here when they arrive.

Kangaroo leather being very expensive, Rutledge believes there would be profit in breeding the animals. He believes the Australian kangaroo will readily adapt itself to conditions in Texas.

YOUR foot must provide support, must bear the weight of your body, must stand up under the 18,908 steps that the average man takes each day.

Now in supporting the body the foot bears the weight at three contact points — the heel, the "ball" and the outer side of the arch.

The ordinary shoe gives support at only two of these points — the heel and the "ball" for the shank of the ordinary shoe soon sags down and the arch is left unsupported.

Therefore the principle of the Arch Preserver Shoe is correct, for the concealed, built-in arch bridge supports at this contact point of the arch where support is needed and there can be no strain. And this arch bridge is exclusive, too — the patent on it having been upheld in the highest courts.

The Arch Preserver Shoe is different. It has other exclusive features.

Try a pair and you will immediately see the difference.

Turn the key! and your Buick is Double Locked

No lock could be safer! One turn of the key locks both ignition and steering wheel. But merely turning off the ignition does not lock the wheel. You may shut off the engine and coast, if you like, and still have your car under perfect control.

And no lock could be more convenient! It is illuminated and located within easy reach, where the steering column meets the dash.

The Buick double-lock is an exclusive Buick feature—one of many important refinements which characterize Buick for 1928.

Only One Man Lives in This Town!

Here's the only building in town of Riceland, Ohio, and its proprietor—T. E. Rice. Rice and family are entire population of the community, and he makes it pay to the tune of $50,000 a year.

(International Newsreel)

By L. E. EARLY
International Illustrated News Staff Correspondent

RICELAND, Ohio (I-I-N).—You have heard of one-horse towns, but we'll bet a few dollars that a one-man town is a new one on you.

It was—on us!

Your correspondent hopped over here and found this community snuggling between Massillon and Wooster. And said community boasting of a total permanent population of three—Mr. and Mrs. T. E. Rice and son!

There's just one building in Riceland.

But it contains a good hotel, restaurant, piano store, automobile shop, grocery store, garage and gas filling station.

What's more, Riceland boasts a sporty nine-hole course—and that's the secret of the Rices' success.

The links attract members from both Wooster and Massillon, who find Riceland an easy and short drive right on the Lincoln Highway. They pay dues of $25 a year.

The hotel and restaurant are leased to outside interests at a rate which so far has netted a profit. In fact, the entire town, with its various interests, is doing $50,000 worth of business a year.

Rice ran a music store in Wooster until taxes got his goat. So he went out to the country and conceived the idea of building his own town and fixing his own tax rate. And here he is!

United States Ahead of World in Reading

Some self-confessed intellectuals question the high plane of the American's taste for reading matter but they cannot deny that the American reads more than the other peoples of the world. Government statistics disclose that there are 20,001 newspapers in the United States and that the country's book business last year was $2[illegible]0,000,000. The nation consumed 10,000,000 tons of paper last year. In face of these amazing figures none can complain that Americans do not read enough. If we don't all read classical literature all of the time we at least read and that is a healthful sign. A comparison of paper consumption reveals that more paper is required for the United States than for all of the rest of the world and that this country's consumption per capita is more than twice as great as that of the next largest user of paper.—Bangor Commercial.

Modern Woman's Charm Based Upon Egotism?

"Modern woman's charm is based on egotism and her main desire is to satiate her senses with being as free from scruples as from honor."

Thus Jean Gabriel Domergue, the portrait painter, who owes his fame to his skill in depicting the charms of the wealthy celebrities of society and the stage, criticizes the modern woman.

"I learn to know women when I am painting their portraits; they tell me their tastes and aspirations and this is their mentality today," he told a woman's magazine recently. "It applies to women of all classes. I have seen them all pass through my studio, society women, bourgeoises and actresses."

Her Choice

A Florence girl says she had rather wear a cow bell than be bothered with a chaperon.—Boston Eagle.

Really Seemed Time for "Beau" to Depart

Some racy stories of Beau Brummell, "King of the Dandies," at the height of his glory a century ago, are told by Lewis Melville in "George Bryan Brummell: His Life and Letters," recalled a writer in the Kansas City Times. It was said of this beau that "women admired him, but men almost reverenced him." He never married, but that he was not indifferent to the charm and companionship of the ladies, there is plenty of evidence.

"I must leave here this morning," he said unexpectedly to his host when staying at a country house.

"But," the other expostulated, "you were not going until the end of the week."

"True, quite true," the beau concurred, "but I really must be off."

His host, however, was not satisfied, and plied him with questions until at last Brummell, in desperation, blurted out:

"Well, the fact is, I am in love with your wife."

"Why, my dear fellow, so was I twenty years ago," remarked the lady's husband, hoping to put his guest at his ease. Then a thought struck him and he inquired:

"Is she in love with you?"

"I—I believe she is."

"That alters the case," the host said with decision. "I will send for your post horse immediately."

Solving One Problem of the Crowded City

"I shall be glad to see Hector, your big Saint Bernard, again," said the visitor to the suburbs as the flivver rolled along.

"Had to get rid of that dog," said the modern suburbanite crisply.

"Bite somebody?"

"No, but he took up too much space. Saint Bernard's almost as big as a calf. Belongs to past age, when people had barnyards and real estate wasn't so valuable. A one-family dog house is economic waste nowadays."

"One-family dog house? You don't mean to say—"

"Surely do. Had dog house remodeled when I got rid of Hector. Found, as I expected, that if I got a compact terrier there'd be a nice apartment for a still smaller dog on the top floor. Got good top-floor tenant for my own house; rent out half of garage; why not make dog house pay its own way?"

"And does it?"

"You bet it does. Let top floor to a Pekingese. Belongs to man down street who hasn't room even for a bird cage."—Ladies' Home Journal.

As Small Boy Saw It

It is well to be sure that your child knows wherein he lies, otherwise your punishment or your admonition is likely to go astray. Ellis Parker Butler told a charming story illustrating this in the Delineator. A child was being asked where a piece of cake had gone. To the amazement of his questioner he replied with a tale about a "nocernoss" that had flown in at the window and eaten the cake. His father, coming home that night, took matters into his own hands; he lectured the child on the sin of telling stories that were not true, and accompanied this lecture with a dissertation on the habits and limitations of rhinoceroses. The child was then spanked and put bed. Presently the father climbed the stairs to see whether his little boy was repentant. "Why were you spanked?" he asked. "'Cauce nocerosses can't fly," came the answer.

Important Part Left Out

The other evening while drawing pictures on a blackboard to amuse our little girl, I drew a fish globe containing two fish. I forgot to draw their fins, so when I asked her how she liked them, she said: "But, daddy, you forgot to make their oars."—Exchange.

THE SECRETARY BIRDS

The secretary birds had planned to have a big field races. The afternoon of the races had come. You know, the secretary birds have very, very long, thin legs.

Very Long Thin Legs.

Their legs are so thin that you can hardly see how it is that they can support such big bodies, for the secretary birds have really fat bodies.

Well, on the afternoon of the races they all entered, and you never saw such running.

They simply went like the wind, but the chief race of all was between one bird named Sandy and one named Mongo.

They were considered the fastest runners of all.

They had often raced and often before had come in at the end of the race in a tie.

But this time Mongo had been practicing very hard and had been very careful not to eat anything to hurt his wind.

Sandy had been practicing every day, too, but he thought it was absurd to give up things to eat.

However, Mongo had always heard that all athletes were very careful of their eating, and, as he had never been able to beat Sandy yet, he was bound he would try everything so as to win.

The prize was to be a fine, great big snake which had been captured and killed a few days before the races were to take place.

You see, secretary birds think snakes are delicious food, and it is all in the point of view, for they practically live on them.

Most of us, in fact all of us, wouldn't think they would be nice food at all.

But then we eat strange things that the secretary birds wouldn't think delicious at all.

Of course the idea of eating snakes sounds quite horrible to us, but not to the secretary birds.

We Eat Strange Things.

Well, during the race all the secretary birds shrieked at each of the racers in their cackling voices:

"Go it, go it! Win, Mongo! Win, Sandy!"

For a few moments Mongo got quite a bit ahead, but Sandy succeeded in catching up with him, and once again they passed by the goal side by side.

It was a splendid race, but it showed that Mongo and Sandy were really absolutely evenly matched, so they gave a funny cackle, which meant a laugh, and each, taking an end of the prize, said:

"We'll all have a taste of the prize, as neither of us can win it."

So they all sat down to what they considered a pleasant and tasty supper party.

Who Won the Flag?

Little Tommie was looking at some war pictures, and with a puzzled expression on his face he said, "Mother, why do men go to war?"

Mother answered, "Why, to fight for the flag, Tommy."

"Well, mother," said Tommy, "did all the men go to the last war to fight for the flag?"

"Of course they did," said mother.

"Well, then," said Tommy, "who finally got it?"

Borrowed Grandmother

All Billy's playmates know that he has no grandmothers. His parents had an old family friend for a guest during the last week.

One of the youngsters asked Billy who she was, and he replied, "Grandma Davis."

"Huh," said the other youngster, "thought you had no grandmothers."

"Well," came back Billy, "we've just borrowed her."

Billy's Polite Invitation

Billy Lee was given the permission personally to invite his little friends to his birthday party.

He went from house to house that afternoon and after calmly giving the invitation he added politely (without fail to each child): "And you can bring anything you wants to."

Wanted a Talking Baby

Herb was taken to the hospital to see mother and the new baby brother.

When his mother asked him how he liked the baby, Herb replied indifferently: "I'd rather go down and buy one that could talk and walk."

CLINTONDALE.

Clintondale, Sept. 29.—A Rally Day service was held in the M. E. Church last Sunday night. There was a good congregation present. A printed form of songs and responses was used. The service concluded with an altar service. At least eighty per cent of the congregation gathered about the altar for prayer and re-consecration. The pastor remarked that it was one if the most heartening things he had seen for a long time.

The Sacrament of the Lord's Supper will be observed next Sunday. The pastor would be glad to administer the sacrament to the shutins of his congregation Sunday afternoon in their homes if this suggestion should meet with their convenience. At this service, also, an invitation will be given to unite with the church. Sermon subject: "The Golden Rule." The hour of service 7:30 p. m.

PATOU'S THREE TONES OF WOOD BROWN FIND FAVOR FOR SPORTS—THE CULOTTE SKIRT AGAIN ENGAGES ATTENTION.

New York.—Unless one has an eye for details, one is in danger of missing some of the delightful tricks designers are playing upon us. Careful attention to hand-work, and to details that in themselves may appear unimportant, but which really make a gown, is one of the "musts" of a season that starts off with a swing, as far as style interest is concerned.

In the model sketched, for example, one might overlook the important fact that the skirt is of the culotte variety, certainly an ideal type for sports wear. Dresses for children, both play frocks and others, have become universally popular when made with matching bloomers. The idea has been adopted for grown-ups and elaborated upon until the culotte skirt has a recognized standing for sports wear. In spite of the hue and cry occasioned by the demand for more elaborate clothes, it must be remembered that sports togs remain very essential to the average woman.

Paton's three shades of wood brown, which he cleverly designates as "one," "two," and "three," instead of giving them imaginative names, are proving very well liked for sports. Also, the combination of blue and mauve, reported from Deauville and Biarritz, is winning American favor—as well it should, for what is more charming than these two tones, especially when introduced in plaids?

Writing still in terms of sports wear, Descat is popularizing the tweed hat. Tweed coats, often nutria-trimmed, give credence to the reports that nutria is taking its place with other pelts.

Antelope, calf, and pony skin are also sports fur favorites.

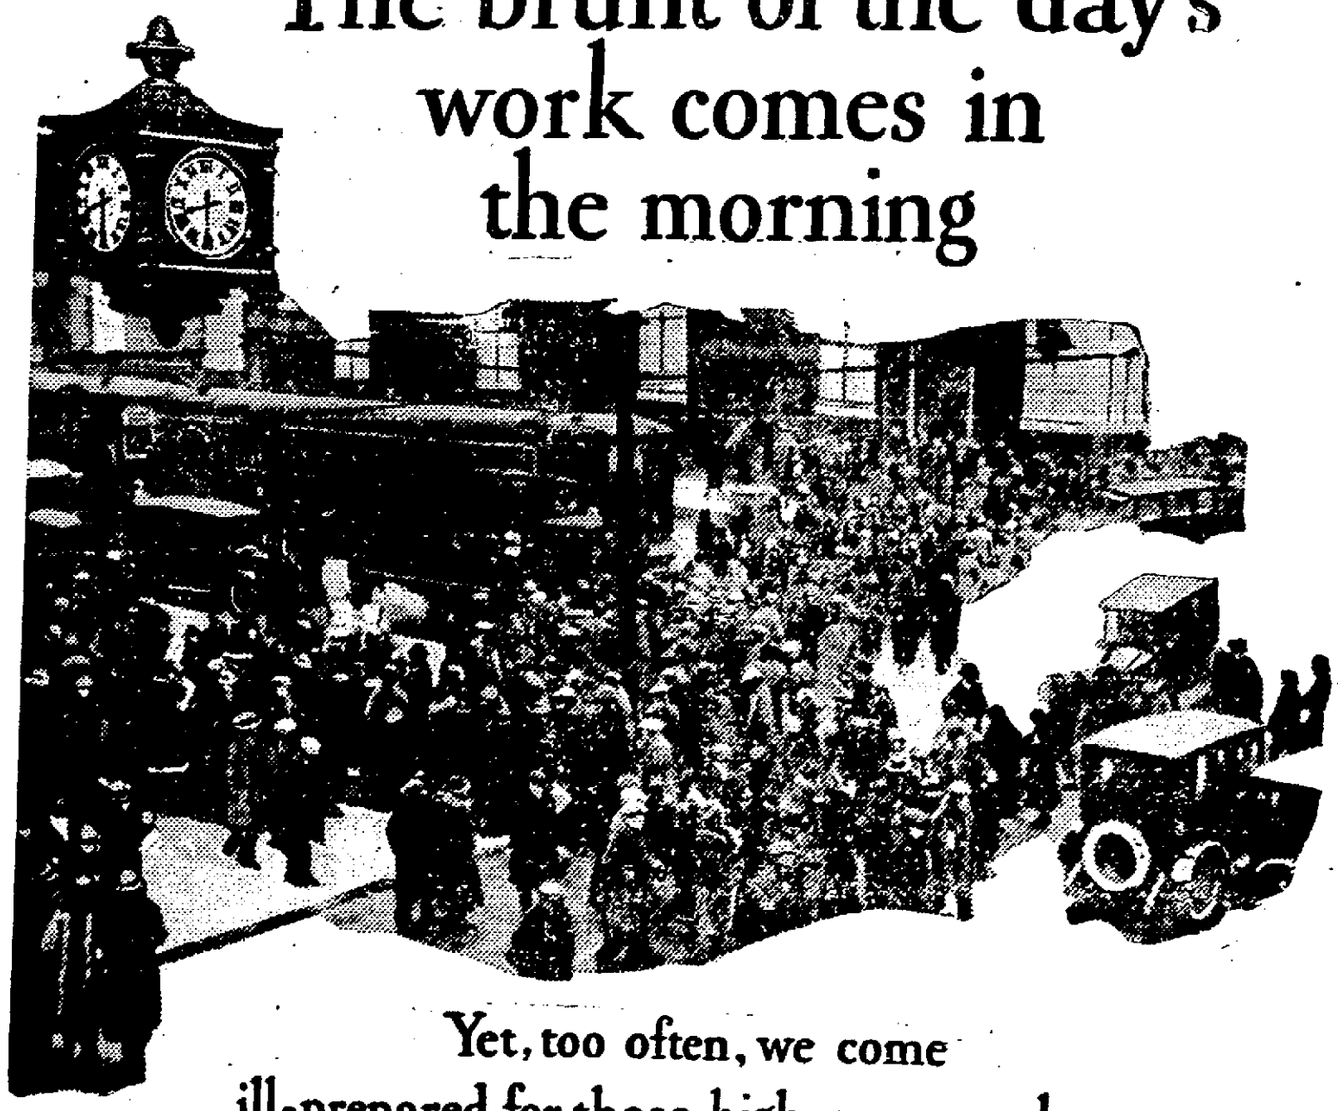
The brunt of the day's work comes in the morning



Yet, too often, we come ill-prepared for those high-pressure hours

Crowded into the four morning hours is 70% of the world's work, new figures show. At schools and colleges, 70% of the hardest classes are before luncheon. Workers and students can't afford to be listless or draggy in the morning!

But too often, people don't realize the need of a proper breakfast. They feel energetic after a good sleep—so they think a hurried, badly-chosen breakfast doesn't matter. Soon they feel tired, draggy, dull—

Business heads and educators say that high-pressure mornings demand better preparation. They urge better breakfasts—breakfasts that "stand by."

For morning vigor that lasts, authorities advise Quick Mother's Oats. Oatmeal supplies energy, protein needed for tissue-repair, minerals and vitamins that maintain health—and roughage! It is the best-balanced of all the cereals.

Long a favorite for its rich flavor, Quick Mother's Oats is therefore now the choice of thousands who want to speed up their mornings.

Start tomorrow to give your family this hot nourishing breakfast. Your grocer has Mother's Oats—both the regular kind you've always known, and the quick-cooking kind, cooks faster than toast.

MRS. MARY L. J. AKELEY
(International Illustrated News)

New York (I.I.N.)—Decorated by the king of Belgium for her courageous work in penetrating African forests after the death of her husband in the midst of their trip, Mrs. Mary L. J. Akeley, widow of the famous explorer, Carl Akeley, is to be further honored.

She has been appointed by the trustees of the American Museum of Natural History to assist in the development of Mr. Akeley's plan for a great African Hall for that institution.

Her seven and a half months of hunting and hunting in Kenya, Uganda and Tanganyika, Mrs. Akeley was her husband's constant companion and confidante.

With Mr. Akeley's unexpected death, Kivu, the volcano region of the Belgian Congo, Mrs. Akeley suddenly found herself the head of the expedition.

Determined that her husband's work should not be left unfinished, she remained for seven weeks in her isolated camp, 500 miles by motor and 150 miles on foot from their base in Nairobi. In spite of intense cold, continuous rain, inadequate provisions and the reluctance and insufficient numbers of her native porters, she managed to obtain the material for the gorilla group which Mr. Akeley desired for African Hall.

[illegible] she transported her outfit [illegible] Lake Hannington in the Great Rift Valley, where the thermometer registered 115 degrees from eight in the morning until four in the afternoon, and there secured similar materials for a group of greater koodoo.

Her knowledge of her husband's plans and purposes and her experiences in Africa make Mrs. Akeley's aid very important in the carrying out of Carl Akeley's plans for a museum exhibit which will record in permanent and artistic form the rapidly disappearing wild life of Africa.

In recognition of her heroic completion of the Congo expedition, Mrs. Akeley upon her return to Belgium last March was decorated by King Albert with the Cross of the Knight of the Order of the Crown.

FLOOD LIGHT FOR BATTLE MONUMENT

Albany, Sept. 29.—Arrangements to flood light the Saratoga battle monument at Schuylerville for a period of ten days beginning today have just been made by Dr. Alexander C. Flick, chairman of the State Sesqui anniversaries, with the General Electric Company. Both search and flood lights will be operated by the Adirondack Power and Light Corporation.

The Schuylerville monument stands on a hill 240 feet above the river on the site of Burgoyne's intrenched camp and is itself 155 feet high. The base is forty feet square and from this a two story Gothic plinth supports the obelisk shaft. Three niches in the base contain statues of Schuyler, Gates and Morgan; the forth niche, empty, would have housed the statue of another American general had he not later turned traitor.

From the top of the monument a magnificent view may be had of the upper Hudson Valley. The entire panorama is a scene of historic interest framed by majestic mountains. To the south may be seen the Catskills more than seventy-five miles distant; East are the Green mountains of Vermont, north the Adirondacks about Lake George and Lake Champlain and west, Saratoga Springs and the Palmer and Kayadrosseras ranges of the Adirondacks.

Settlements that braved the days of the Revolution and still bear marks of the campaign are to be seen from the monument, they include: Stillwater, Glens Falls, Hudson Falls, Fort Edward, Fort Ann, Fort Miller, Greenwich and North Easton.

Platforms containing the lighting equipment do not detract from the appearance of the monument by day and at night the battle memorial pierces the darkness with its phosphorescent like light.

In the new Hudson motor, spark knock heretofore characteristic of the high-compression motor is eliminated, and ordinary gasoline gives the performance results sought through special and higher-priced fuels.

It is receiving the greatest public reception in Hudson history, because in all ways it is the greatest Hudson Super-Six ever built.

Costs $13.70 to Talk to Mexico

That is Charge for Three Minute Call From Kingston to Mexico City Over New 'Phone Circuits Opening for Service on Friday.

It is announced by the American Telephone & Telegraph Company and the International Telephone and Telegraph Corporation that telephone communication between the United States and several of the principal cities of Mexico will be opened Friday morning, September 30, at 8 o'clock. It will then be possible to talk from any Bell System point to Mexico City, Puebla, Tampico, San Luis Potosi, Victoria, Saltillo, Monterrey and Nuevo Laredo. The total length of the circuit between Washington and Mexico City is 3,357 miles.

This new service will bring Mexico's capital city, and principal seaport, Tampico, and the capitals of some of the richest and most progressive states within the range of American telephone communication. The charge for a three minute station-to-station call from Kingston to Mexico City will be $13.70.

The Bell System has made arrangements to connect at Laredo, Texas, with the newly completed lines of the Mexican Telephone & Telegraph Company, a subsidiary of the International Telephone & Telegraph Corporation. At this point the line will cross the Rio Grand, which there forms the international boundary.

From Nuebo Laredo on the Mexican side of the Rio Grand, the long distance lines run through some arid regions and through mountainous mining districts, ranches and farming countries, southward to Mexico City and Puebla, and passes through Monterrey, Saltillo, Lan Luis Potosi and Queretaro, affording telephone communication to these points. A branch line extends from San Luis Potosi to Tampico, the important seaport on the semi-tropical east coast of Mexico. Another line runs up from Tampico to Victoria.

The Mexican long distance lines have practically all been built within the last year or two and are thoroughly modern constructions. Telephone repeaters have been installed at intervals to strengthen the voice carrying currents, as they become weak from covering long distances; and the lines have been designed with a view to providing such additional circuits as the growth of traffic may require.

The Bell System already connects with the telephone systems of Canada, Cuba and by radio telephone Great Britain, the new service of Mexico to the list of countries which are within speaking distance of American telephone users.

Special License For Hunting Deer

New State Law Requires Hunters to Do More Things, and Guides Are Asked to See That Hunters Obey the Law.

Albany, Sept. 29.—Under a law enacted by the legislature in 1926 all persons hunting deer in New York state this year will be required to have a special deer hunting license. The purpose of this law is to obtain accurate information regarding the number of deer killed and the counties in which they are killed, and will give the state valuable information regarding the deer herd. The Conservation Department is preparing to have the results of this fall's deer hunting season compiled immediately after the close of the hunting season, something that it has never been possible to do heretofore, the compilation of the game take ordinarily requiring two years.

To assist the hunters in obeying the law and thereby insure a one hundred per cent observance, Llewellyn Legge, chief game protector, is writing to all licensed guides asking their assistance in securing a strict observance of the law. In case any of the hunters going into the woods after deer this fall may not be familiar with the requirements of the new law, the guides have been requested to see that they have the proper license and make correct use of the tags as provided by law.

Chapter 474 of the laws of 1926, which became effective January 1, 1927, provides that no person shall hunt, pursue or kill with a gun any wild deer without having first procured a special deer license.

The law also provides that this special deer license shall be provided with four coupons marked: "Right forward quarter," "Left forward quarter," "Left hind quarter," and "Right hind quarter," for attaching to the appropriate parts of the deer as soon as it is killed, the tags to remain on the quarters until they are consumed. The license also contains a duplicate coupon which under the provisions of the law must be forwarded by registered mail to the Conservation Department in Albany, which will contain a description of the deer, the county in which it was taken and the address of the hunter taking it.

Chief Legge has also written to the game protectors asking them to give particular attention to the enforcement of the new law and to give all possible assistance to hunters in observing it.

The cost of a special deer hunting license is the same as the cost of a regular hunting, trapping and fishing license, and if a person is only going to hunt deer it will not be necessary for him to have any other license than this special deer license, but if birds protected by law or quadrupeds protected by law, with the exception of deer, are hunted, a person must be in possession of the combination hunting, fishing and trapping license.

Stowaways Guard Monkey

Two young stowaways on the steamer The Lambs, in the port of Baltimore from Manila, with a cargo of sugar, made themselves so useful as caretakers of four monkeys that the captain had aboard that they've been signed on for a Far East trip and have decided to follow the sea. The boys boarded the ship at the Canal Zone. They are Claude and John W. Dawson, both of St. Louis. Only once on the voyage did their charges get away and then one of them entered an officer's cabin and devoured two cakes of soap.

Scientists say that flies carry germs of typhoid fever, infantile paralysis, summer disorders and over thirty other diseases. Flies should be killed. Society Will Buy Marshall House

Saratoga Historical Society Will Preserve Famous Old Landmark—Interesting Bits of Revolutionary War Recalled.

Schuylerville, N. Y., Sept. 29 (AP)—The Saratoga Historical Society plans to purchase and preserve the Marshall House, one of the landmarks of the Saratoga battlefield.

Situated on a hill west of the highway about a mile north of this village, the old building is still used as a dwelling, 154 years after it was built by Peter Lansing of Albany. The frame has not been altered and the arrangement of the rooms has not been changed since the days, 150 years ago next month, when it sheltered the Baroness Riedesel and her children during the second battle of Saratoga. It was this incident that gave the residence its paragraph in history.

About 2 o'clock in the afternoon of October 10, 1777, a rude calash containing the young and beautiful wife of the commander of the Hessians with Burgoyne drove up to the house with her three daughters, whom she sought to remove as far as possible from the impending battle.

Stretching away to the southwest lay the British troops and the German auxiliaries, resting in their retreat from the battleground near Bemis Heights. To the west Morgan's famous riflemen were taking up positions along Burgoyne's front and flank. Just across the Hudson to the east, the forces of Colonel Fellows were bringing their batteries to bear upon the foe at bay.

How Mother Escaped Bullets.

As Baroness Riedesel's party halted before the house some soldiers stationed across the river levelled their muskets, believing that the dwelling was the British headquarters and that the arrivals were probably high officers. Hastily pushing her children to the bottom of the conveyance, the young mother barely had time to throw herself down before the bullets of the American sharpshooters whistled overhead, severely wounding a soldier in attendance on the Baroness.

The house soon became the refuge of other ladies of the British army and also of some wounded soldiers. No sooner had they entered than the American batteries stationed on the heights across the river trained their artillery upon the house and opened a fire that speedily drove the occupants to the cellar. Here Madame Riedesel lay down in a corner, quieting her three children as best she could. She was forced to remain a week in this dark, damp retreat.

The cellar was divided by plank partitions into three apartments in which the women and children and the wounded officers and soldiers found shelter. Early next morning the firing was resumed and eleven cannon balls passed through the house in a brief interval.

Soldier Lost Remaining Leg.

In the northeast parlor surgeons were amputating the leg of a wounded British soldier when a solid shot tore away his remaining leg. The man was abandoned to die in a corner. One of the planks shattered by this ball in its passage through the house is still shown to visitors.

Cowardly soldiers from time to time sought to force their way into the cellar, and were restrained with difficulty. Wounded soldiers were constantly brought in for nursing; suffering, thirst and death increased the horror of the situation. None dared to go to the river for water save a soldier's wife, whose sex was respected by the enemy.

The British had intended to use the house as a hospital. It became instead, the prison of its terror-stricken inmates who were not relieved until after the defeat of the British.

After the Revolution the house passed into the hands of the Marshall family, and has since been known by their name.

PLUTARCH.

Plutarch, Sept. 29.—Mr. and Mrs. Oscar Haas are entertaining friends from Haggerstown, Maryland, and New York this week.

William Albertson has a fine crop of cucumber pickles and finds ready sale for them.

Mrs. Chester Stratton and daughter, Blanche Fox, of Lomontville and Raymond Lefever and mother from near Stone Ridge spent Friday afternoon last with Mr. and Mrs. Henry McCormick.

Mr. and Mrs. Fred Palmatier and mother of South street spent Sunday in town.

Some time Monday night some one visited the home of Mr. and Mrs. Richard Schneider and left 8 grain bags near the house. Just what their intentions were, no one knows. It is thought the dogs frightened them away. Perhaps some one wanted a chicken dinner.

Mrs. Henry McCormick spent Monday afternoon with Mr. and Mrs. John Ashton at New Paltz.

Peter Michel has had his house wired for electric lights.

ACCORD.

Accord, Sept. 29.—Mrs. E. Sands is spending a few days with Mr. and Mrs. Edgar Van Vliet.

A Democratic caucus will be held in I. O. O. F. Hall, Accord, October 1 at 7:30 p. m., to elect eleven delegates for the purpose of attending the Democratic town caucus on October 3 at I. O. O. F. Hall, Accord. At the town caucus candidates will be nominated for town offices.

Flashes of Life Sketched in Brief

(By the Associated Press.)

London—Efforts are being made to persuade Evangeline Booth, commander of the Salvation Army, to change her name in matrimony. "But I can't see it" she said. "My whole heart is in my work. I don't propose to be caught at this date in life."

New York—G. Maurice Heckscher, real estate dealer and son of August Heckscher, millionaire philanthropist, is on his honeymoon with the former Luella Gear, who played in the Gold Diggers and was formerly the wife of Byron Chandler, "millionaire kid."

Cleveland—The jury which awarded $3,655 damages because Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Mack were locked up for petting is accused by Police Sergeant Frank Rolfs of prejudice. He seeks a new trial.

New York—Though she may be separated legally from her husband, it is a wife's positive duty to care for him during illness, the surrogate's court has decided. By so doing Mrs. Frederick C. Peters did not forfeit her rights to $200 a month for life granted under a separation agreement.

Beverly, Mass.—Miss Anna Foster Lovett, 57, whose ancestors came over on the Mayflower, is to wed Peter S. Terry, 35, who once did chores at her show place on the fashionable north shore and drove her car. He now sells insurance.

Baltimore—In an "elopement" from New York, as he describes it, Aaron Benesch, 60, retired banker, has married Miss Helen Henderon, 23, formerly of the Follies. They could not get a license in New York because of restrictions under his last divorce.

New York—In a few centuries the world seems destined to lack beautiful women. Such is one of the conclusions drawn from the decline of the birth rate in the upper classes by Prof. Ellsworth Huntington of Yale and Leon F. Whitney. Of 500 of Mr. Ziegfeld's beauties who have married only 25 have children.

OFFICE CAT
By Junius

Too few parents are on spanking terms with their children.

A young man doesn't meet more girls nowadays than a young man met thirty years ago, but he sees more girl.

A woman, generally speaking, is generally speaking.

Mr.—Would you like to have a one-eyed husband?
Mrs.—Certainly not.
Mr.—Then let me carry that umbrella.

Moral values have changed; now the young ladies (and older ones, too) wish to be weighed and found wanting.

Excited Father: "Is it a boy or a girl?"
Nurse (who knows): "What difference does it make? You won't be able to tell the difference ten years from now, anyway."

A go-getter is a fellow with sufficient money to hire someone else to get it.

The Bobbed Hundred.

Bobbed hair to the right of us,
Bobbed hair to the left of us,
Bobbed hair behind us,
Tresses asunder.

Some with a heavy mop,
Some with a lighter crop,
Into the barber shop
Walked the bobbed hundred.

Women of high degree,
Women past fifty-three,
Determified, each, to be
One of the numbered.

Some of them look right swell,
Some of them look like—well,
Just as well not to tell
On the bobbed hundred.

Just remember this:
You are free to ignore the laws of nature, but paying the penalty is compulsory.

"An elderly man was having lunch in our grill," said a hotel manager, "and, as was customary, when his water glass showed evidence of use a passing waiter refilled it. After the fifth or sixth filling, the diner let out a roar.

"'Stop,' he cried. 'I've been trying to get the water glass to the proper level ever since I came to this table. My doctor ordered me to take a pill in a third of a glass of water. Now, I feel like an overloaded water wagon, and I still have the pill to take.'"

"Paw, what is a cake eater?"
"A college boy who bites his nails so short that he can't pick up cafe checks."

A dog is the only friend you can buy that will stay bought.

"Have you any alarm clocks," inquired the customer. "I want one that will wake father without disturbing the rest of the family?"

"I don't know of any such alarm clock, madam," replied the clerk, "we only have the regular kind that wake the rest of the family without disturbing father."

Rotary Club luncheon this week at the Governor Clinton was attended by a number of visitors, places represented including Newburgh, Port Jervis, New York, Jackson, Michigan, and Oak Park, Ill. Plans were announced for the intercity outing at Golden Rule Inn next Wednesday at which Rotarians from Poughkeepsie, Newburgh, Hudson, Catskill, Port Jervis, Middletown and Monticello will be the guests of the Kingston Rotarians. Things will begin to happen at 2 o'clock in the afternoon and are liable to keep on happening until 2 o'clock the next morning if the dinner in the evening is followed by as many speeches as are usual at such meetings.

The speaker of the day was Thomas F. Coughlin, who told the Rotarians of the work of the American Legion generally and of the activities and plans of Kingston Post more specifically, as an active power for good in the nation and in the community. He did this, not boastingly, but, as he said, "In order that you may know that the Legion is not sitting around waiting for you to pat it on the back, but is alive and working for that which is best in national and community life."

Vosdick Kayos Jerry Sampere

Five and Van Buren Lose In Fast Bouts—Other Matches Thru Were Interesting at Woodcliff.

Joe Vosdick, former Saugerties boy, now a resident of Jersey City, where he is continuing his popularity as a boxer was the only pugilist, rumored by Kingstonians, who was able to score a victory at Woodcliff last boxing show. Wednesday night Joe at 154½ put away Jerry Sampere, 152 of Poughkeepsie after two minutes and forty-five seconds of hard punching in the second round. Sampere went down twice during the encounter and took the count of five the first time. Vosdick still has his mighty left wallop and has improved much on his technic. Joe will take on Jackie Reid at the next show promoted by Billy Grupp.

Charlie Fisher, popular Kingston Scrapper, lost to Jackie Reid in the six-round semi final. The battle was the toughest one of the card. Charlie who entered the ring at 146½ dropped to the canvas for the count of nine in the fourth and fifth. The sixth round Fisher battled toe to toe with Reid but both scrappers were tired and their wallops lacked the necessary dynamite. Reid's action in the roped arena attracted Joe Vosdick's attention and Vosdick issued the challenge which Reid immediately accepted.

Van Buren Lost.

Roy Van Buren was the other local boy to drop his scrap to Joe Cosso of Newburgh. The scrap went the scheduled four rounds, as the opener of the show, and despite the fact that Van Buren fought more scientifically and carefully than Cosso the Hilly City lad by his aggressiveness attracted the admiration of the judges.

Georgie Jackson, better known as Gene Mack, lost to Eddie Clark of Atlantic City by a knockout before the scheduled ten rounds materialized. Gene failed to land his famous left while Clark victimized him with a dynamic right.

The most scientific boxer on the program was little Joe Haley of Newburgh who won from Dave Brown of Yonkers after four rounds of milling. Haley pleased the fans with his ability to counterfight and by his blocking at close quarters.

Al Brown and Harry London both of New York put up a good show with the decision of an infighting encounter in favor of London.

Kid Guider of Harlem won by a knockout over Al Metro of the East Side in the third of a four-round encounter. The third went two minutes and fifty-five seconds.

Billy Owens Wins.

Billy Owens of Newburgh was awarded the decision over Chic Sandberg of Poughkeepsie after two rounds of fighting. Owens an experienced ring man had little trouble with Sandberg, who made his debut in the squared circle at Woodcliff Park. So-called "stagefright" played no little part in the defeat of Sandberg.

The officials were Michael Hughes, Haverstraw, referee; Joseph Reilly, Troy and Joseph Brennan, Haverstraw, judges; Harry Cody, Poughkeepsie, timer.

The pugilistic atmosphere was somewhat altered when Fred H. Ponty of Poughkeepsie was presented with an oil portrait of himself by the Industrial League for his accomplishments in the interest of that organization. The canvas was presented on the canvas within the ropes.

Another show is exepcted to be run by Billy Grupp in the near future. The Wednesday night performance was well attended and Kingston fans were present in considerable numbers. That women are becoming interested in the manly art was also manifested by the presence of a goodly number of the weaker sex.

And now Willie Ritchie is trying a comeback—which shows what comes of reading the papers.

Secret Drill Aid Suit Some Coaches

Secret football practice is desirable, not so much for the sake of keeping plays secret as for the protection of players' feelings in the view of Dr. C. W. Speers, head coach at the University of Minnesota.

"I am not greatly concerned," he remarks, "about keeping pet plays secret. Feelings of young players I consider far more important. If I have to 'call' a player he accepts my remarks in the right way if only players hear. But a "call-down' in front of a large gallery is demoralizing."

TENNIS AND GOLF CROWD BASEBALL

During Last Decade Boys Desert Diamond Game.

Golf and tennis have made great inroads into the ranks of the boys who formerly manned the sandlot diamonds. Compare the number of golf links in the country today with those of a quarter of a century ago. Of the great hosts who knock the little white pill over the hill and dale the great majority have been at it less than ten years.

Those busy golf courses need a tremendous lot of boys for caddying purposes, especially on Saturdays, Sundays and holidays. The kids who used to get up at six o'clock in the morning on the Fourth of July to get the early baseball diamond now get up that early so that they can carry clubs over three rounds.

The American boy doesn't change. He always stood ready to make an honest dollar, and golf gives him a chance to knock out from $2 to $5 a day.

Then the kids also are playing golf. They also are taking more and more to tennis. Many can go back to the time when we regarded boys who brought their tennis rackets to school with a certain amount of superior disdain. Tennis, they thought, was a "sissy" game, not to be compared with such a manly sport as baseball. Today most every one knows that playing a double-header doesn't take nearly as much starch out of one as a hard five-set match.

Emmer, Crack Shortstop, Is Headed for Majors

Frank Emmer, Minneapolis shortstop, can hit as well as field. Emmer tied the all-time American association fielding record of 22 consecutive errorless games by handling 140 chances without an error.

Emmer has been batting better than .300 all season. During his fielding spree he was tied for runner-up position for home-run honors. The day he tied the A. A. fielding record he drove out a triple to score three runs, putting his team back into a winning spurt at a time when it was four runs behind and there was only one inning to go.

Emmer got into the big show with Cincinnati but was sent back. He is determined to vindicate himself and is considered to be headed again for the major leagues.

Helen Wills Disagrees With Suzanne Over Pros

Professionalism in tennis bores Miss Helen Wills.

"If I were as poor as a church mouse I should not become a professional," Miss Wills asserted.

"I cannot quite understand how anyone can play such a good game when he or she knows that the prize will be received whether the game is won or lost."

But Mlle. Susanne Lenglen thinks differently. She is quite certain that "sport professional or otherwise, does not spoil a woman's femininity."

"Far from it," was Mlle. Lenglen's reply to criticisms that too much indulgence in athletics and sport was tending to make women masculine.

Meehan's Star Team

"Chick" Meehan's crack New York university football team, which went through last year's opponents like a prairie fire, losing only the last game of the season to Nebraska, indulged in early gridiron practice at Farmingdale, L. I. Coach Meehan has a number of last year's veterans around whom to build his team. The photo shows "Chick" himself.

Tagging Major League Bases

(By The Associated Press)

Clinging to their almost negligible hope of getting a tie for first place in the National League standing the New York Giants were in a slightly better attacking position today, the result of a 5-4 victory in ten innings over Philadelphia while the Pittsburgh Pirates and the St. Louis Cards were idle yesterday.

Still two full games in the lead, Pittsburgh needs only one more victory out of three games scheduled with Cincinnati to insure at least a tie.

There are several possibilities left in the National League race. Pittsburgh can clinch the pennant by winning two out of three. St. Louis can win the flag if Pittsburgh loses all three games while the Cards win their three remaining contests. The Pirates and Cardinals would end up in a tie for the lead if St. Louis won three and the Pirates took only one out of three. The Giants' chance for a tie rests in Pittsburgh losing three games while New York wins three. A triple tie would exist if the Pirates lost three while the Giants won three and St. Louis won two out of three.

The possibilities appear to be far from probability. The Pirates ought to win at least two out of three from Cincinnati, baseball stats argue. Pittsburgh will be idle today and will enter the final series with plenty of rest behind them.

New York trailed Philadelphia until the eighth inning yesterday when a two run rally tied the score. The Giants stepped out in front in the ninth by pulling over a run, but Philadelphia knotted the count again in the home half. The tenth Hornsby hunted safely, was sacrificed to second and scored on a single by Derormer.

Washington closed its season series with the Boston Red Sox by taking both ends of a doubleheader. Hadley pitched the Senators to a 2-1 victory. He allowed only six hits, fanned five batters and collected two hits in three attempts. Boston drove Fred Marberry from the box in the second game, but Garland Braxton stepped in and held them scoreless from the fifth on. Washington winning 6-4. Washington won 13 out of 22 games with Boston this year.

Other American League teams were idle yesterday.

Flynn's Services Worth $75,000

New York, Sept. 29 (AP)—The services of Leo P. Flynn, who managed Jack Dempsey in his fights with Jack Sharkey and Gene Tunney, were worth $75,000 to the former champion over a 90 day period, Dempsey has given Flynn a check for that amount under a blank contract in which the Manassa Mauler was allowed to stipulate the sum at the expiration of the agreement.

Flynn said at the outset he was willing to accept what Dempsey considered he was worth.

Next to Flynn, the biggest check paid by Dempsey was that to Jerry Lavadis, known as "Jerry the Greek." While the exact amount was not revealed, it is understood to be $25,000.

Definite information regarding the payment by Tunney for the services of his manager, Billy Gibson, was lacking, but it was estimated $100,000 to $250,000. Lou Fink, the champion's trainer, was scheduled to receive a bonus of $20,000. Both McCabe and Eddie Eagan, Tunney's close friends, also were to share in the titleholder's Chicago earnings of $1,000,000.

HARVEST HOME FESTIVAL AT ST. MARK'S CHURCH

The harvest home festival closed Sunday night in St. Mark's A. M. E. Church, Foxhall avenue. The various fraternal organizations were present, except the K. of P., due to unavoidable circumstances. These societies added much to the success of the occasion and the church is very grateful for their assistance. The addresses given bearing upon the principles of each fraternity were quite informing and the public was highly benefited, and it is believed and hoped that the several lodges will grow in numbers.

The address of William Jackson for the Elks together with that of John Stanford and Mr. Daveny were very enlightening; the Elks made a good showing. The Odd Fellows, while not out in great numbers, were fairly represented and the address of E. C. Johnson, N. G., hit the mark as he told the good the order has done. The Fishermen of Galilee were present in good numbers and presented a fine appearance; the addresses of Mrs. Fitzgerald and George Johnson should produce good results.

The Community Band of boys, now being trained under Prof. Muller, was present and rendered several selections, showing careful training on the part of their teacher. These boys have been practicing less than three months and at the present rate of progress will soon be able to play upon any occasion. The Rev. E. O. Clark, who encouraged the organization of the band, is showing that he is interested in the boys of Kingston, while the Rev. J. M. Proctor, pastor of St. Mark's, is doing his best to aid the Rev. Mr. Clark in his good work. It is regretted that more of the parents of the boys were not present to witness their first appearance before the public. They are deserving of all the encouragement possible.

Financial and Commercial

New York, Sept. 29 (AP).—Extreme nervous trading characterized today's stock market which witnessed frequent shifts in speculative sentiment. Efforts of "bear" traders to bring about a further reaction in the pivotal industrial disclosed good support but on the other hand resumption of bullish operations in some of the recent strong spots encountered large offerings.

Banks called about $10,000,000 in loans, after the marking up of the call money renewal rate to 4 per cent, bringing to the fore again the subject of brokers' loans, the weekly figures on which will be published after the close of the market today. The expulsion of a stock exchange member for violation of the rules apparently had no effect.

Special buying of the Van Sweringen rails particularly the Erie issues and Chesapeake and Ohio, attracted wide spread attention. Texas and Pacific and Pittsburgh and Western Virginia also recorded good gains.

Bullish demonstrations were most effective in the specialties. Houston Oil was bid up 7 points but weakness developed in Transcontinental Oil. Abilibi Power soared more than 7 points to a new high record. National Tea jumped 5¼ and G. W. Helme, four. Selling pressure was renewed against Texas Gulf Sulphur and Willys Overland common sank to a new low level for the year.

DOCKS WITH WRECKAGE OF THE OLD GLORY.

New York, Sept. 29 (AP).—The Red Cross liner Nerissa docked at Brooklyn today from Newfoundland with wreckage of the monoplane Old Glory, which was lost at sea with three men while attempting a non-stop flight from Old Orchard, Me., to Rome.

The wreckage, all that was ever found of the plane, consisted of 24 feet of the wing, to which was attached part of the fuselage. It was salvaged several hundred miles east of Newfoundland by the search steamer Kyle and transferred to the Nerissa at St. Johns.

Lost on the Trail

By H. LOUIS RAYBOLD

(Copyright.)

MADGE sat on a fallen log trying to recall just exactly what you were supposed to do when lost in the woods.

All she had remembered so far was that one should sit down quietly somewhere and collect one's thoughts, and this she had done, picking out as comfortable a seat as possible in the tangle of juniper, raspberry bushes, ferns, and what not, that matted this particular section of the Lone Trail mountain's southern slope. Madge was not quite sure about that. And that was the trouble.

If it was the southern slope, it must face the lake and, sooner or later, if she kept on going down, she would reach the shore and, by following the shore, she was bound to reach the hotel.

She had wandered off into the woods to make up her mind regarding a tall, sun-browned young man whom she had seen but three times. Once on the hotel veranda in conversation, once in the little summer post office where the elderly postmistress had introduced them, and the third time on that memorable occasion when he had happened along in a canoe in Shadowy bay where she had been reading and where, for an hour, they had sat talking, their canoes side by side.

It was useless to deny that there was some subtle attraction for her in the young forest ranger. It had been distinctly a pleasure to learn that his birth and education had been as unimpeachable as her own. And considerably better than those of the millionaire she was contemplating marrying.

But now that she was lost, she had something else to do than to toy with the possibility of counting wealth well lost for love. She must endeavor to find her way before darkness settled. She would not be missed at the hotel until that time and, even then, nobody would be able to tell in which direction she had strayed.

She looked up through the trees toward the peak of the mountain. If she could only climb a little higher and get a view through the trees of the lake, she would have some idea which way to work. By continuing to descend, she might find herself in some terrible ravine quite on the other side.

She rose and started to ascend, carefully breaking twigs here and there in what she considered approved woodcraft fashion.

Suddenly she stopped short and drew in a quick little breath. Smoke! The acrid tang of burning wood. Just a whiff that vanished all at once and did not return. But it was enough to alarm her immeasurably, and instinctively she plunged on the more frantically upward as if the bare knoll could offer protection from that red plague of the woods.

A break in the wall of foliage ahead told her she was already nearing her goal. A dozen more steps—half a dozen.

She shrank back into the depths of the woods again, her hand at her throat. On the nearer side of the knoll a man bent over a fire. It had been the smoke of that fire which she had smelled and the man who was evidently cooking his supper was Jack Marbury.

He spoke, without turning around. "Don't turn back, Miss Madge. I happened to see you on the trail and came on ahead to get a little supper ready for you."

Madge, her lovely face swept with blushes, stepped forward slowly. "How—how could you possibly have seen me? I was lost—miles from the trail."

"Not all the time. I hesitated about letting you know I was near, but something told me you were trying to reach this spot and it seemed better, somehow, to wait until you came out in the opening before speaking to you. Happened to have my emergency rations with me and—well, if you think you can manage a meal on six strips of bacon and a mug of coffee, we'll have a little spread."

Madge curled up on the rock above him. She had been right about the view. There below, far down, lay the clear waters of the lake, its scattered islands ringed with the green of surrounding shallows. Beyond stretched a jumbled mass of peaks.

"You're probably wondering how I happened to be over this way," continued the man in a matter-of-fact manner. "As it chanced, I was on my way to see you. You have a right to know, I guess, that I love you as I could love no other woman. Yes, I think you have a right, even if you only want to reject my love. And, anyhow, I just had to tell you."

Madge lifted her gray eyes to the soft sky above her. Then her glance swept the glorious panorama of forest and lake and distant hills. "Oh—" she said, half breathlessly.

A sudden conception of the choice that was being offered her swept over her. A five-course dinner in the hotel below for the rest of her life in the company of a middle-aged gentleman of portly build or bacon and coffee on the top of the world with Jack. What girl of any sense would think of hesitating.

Madge didn't. She held out both hands to the man looking at her so wistfully. "Oh—" she said. "I've found so much more than my way this afternoon on Lone Trail mountain!"

When Reading Books

One must be an inventor to read well. As the proverb says, "He that would bring home the wealth of the Indies, must carry out the wealth of the Indies." There is creative reading as well as creative writing.—Emerson.

Local Death Record

Raymond P. Caddy of 36 Foxhall avenue died Wednesday afternoon following a long illness. He was 18 years of age and a young man who had the brightest of prospects in life and who was popular among his many friends. He is the second son of Harry and Dora Schatzel Caddy to pass away this year, a son, John, having died last May. The sympathy of the public is extended to the family in this their double bereavement. Modena, Sept. 29.—Jane Theodora Smith, wife of Richard Coy, died at her home in Modena, Sunday morning, September 25, after being confined to her bed ten days with a complicated illness. Her funeral was held Tuesday afternoon at her late home at 1:30 and at the Methodist Church later. The Rev. Robert C. Reynolds, pastor of the Modena Methodist Church, preached the funeral sermon, and a quartet, Mrs. Orville Seymour, Mrs. Floyd Wells, Freston Paltridge and Noah Paltridge, sang "Beautiful Isle of Somewhere" and "Face to Face." Mrs. Coy was a faithful and active member of the Methodist Church and Ladies' Aid Society, a dependable and willing nurse wherever and whenever needed, an industrious worker and above all, a wonderful mother. She had attained the age of fifty-three years. Besides her husband, Richard Coy, she is survived by seven sons, all residents of Modena: J. Leonard, Albert, Alvin, William, Frank, Richard and Orville; also three sisters, Mrs. Frank Coy of Clinton Corners, Mrs. Lent Travers of Salt Point, Mrs. Fred Bernard of Modena; and four brothers, Oscar Smith and Peter Smith of Modena, John Smith of Ardonia and Fred Smith of Clintondale. The family has the sympathy of the entire community. The burial was in Modena Rural Cemetery. Pall bearers were Augustus Weeks, Archie Mackay, Charles Halstead and Rulleof Ward. Floral offerings were many and beautiful.

Chair of Dietetics Wanted

Two contributions of $50,000 each have been made toward the establishment of a chair of dietetics in the University of London. The gifts are in line with the movement to give the medical profession and others an opportunity of widening their knowledge of food values, and through them, benefiting the public. One contribution was given anonymously by a woman, and the other by a manufacturer of dietetic preparations.

Reaper's Centenary

This is the centenary year of the reaping machine, the early appearance of which, obviating the necessity of large numbers of scythemen, was bitterly resented by agricultural laborers. Dr. Patrick Bell, a minister of Carmylie, Arbroath, Scotland, invented it while he was a student at St. Andrews' university, and the presbytery of Arbroath has appointed a committee to consider the best method of celebrating the centenary of Bell's invention.

Doesn't Believe in Spooks

Louise Austen, "daughter of the warden of the tower of London," is a brave girl. She defied the superstition of the headless ghost haunting the chapel royal in the tower and had her wedding there, close to the graves of Ann Boleyn and other victims of the executioner's ax. The bride said she loved to muse in the chapel in her childhood and was more fond of it than of any place she knew.—Brooklyn Citizen.

Economical City Fathers

The city fathers of Jacksonville, Fla., successfully tried a new way of providing music for the frequenters of the city's ten larger parks. One outstanding musical organization was engaged to play in a studio, and the music then was broadcast through batteries of loud speakers in the parks in all parts of the city.

Styles-Ahl.

A very pretty autumn wedding was solemnized on Wednesday, September 28, at 9:30 o'clock, at St. Peter's Church when Miss Lillian Ahl, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Peter Ahl, of 16 Ravine street, became the bride of Charles H. Styles, of No. 5 Russell street. The marriage ceremony was performed by the Rev. John P. Neumann and the nuptial Mass was read by the Rev. Joseph Huband. Edward and Russell Maines acted as altar boys. During the ceremony Mr. Raible rendered most beautifully "Ave Maria". He was accompanied by Professor Schwalbach at the organ. The bride looked very charming in a gown of white georgette and Spanish lace. Her veil of silk net, embroidered and with lace insets, was caught with a wreath of orange blossoms and satin ribbon. She carried a pretty shower bouquet of bridal roses and lilies of the valley. Miss Hazel Styles, sister of the groom, acted as maid of honor. She wore a gown of changeable pink taffeta, trimmed with silver and wore a picture hat to match. She carried a bouquet of pink roses. The matron of honor was Mrs. John A. Fisher, sister of the bride, who wore a gown of blue velvet trimmed with silver and pearls and a hat to match. She also carried a bouquet of pink roses. The groom was attended by Arthur Ahl, brother of the bride, and Vernon Styles, brother of the groom. The ushers were Edward Ahl of New York city and Walter Holsapple of this city. The groom's gift to the bride was a rhinestone bracelet, and the bride's gift to the groom was a white gold watch. The bride presented her maid of honor with a white gold bracelet set with amythest and her matron of honor a white gold bracelet set with blue sapphire. The groom presented his attendants with a pair of green gold cuff links with their initials engraved on them, and the ushers with bill folds with their names inlaid with gold. Following the ceremony a reception was held at the home of the bride's parents. The house was most artistically decorated in paper of pastel shades. Guests were present from Topeka, Kansas; Cleveland, Ohio; New York city; Westfield, Jersey City and Port Reading, N. J. There were many beautiful and valuable gifts, both the bride and groom having a wide circle of friends. In the evening Mr. and Mrs. Styles left on an extended trip to Washington, D. C., and other points of interest. On their return they will reside in this city, where the groom is connected with the Colonial Painting Company.

The Fall Bulletin of the Young Women's Christian Association has just come from press and been mailed to the complete membership list. This pamphlet, "In Service for Kingston Girls," contains a list of all clubs and classes for the first term and copies will gladly be mailed to any persons interested in the activities.

The first swimming classes will begin at the Y. M. C. A. Pool, on Tuesday, October 3. Miss Alice McLaughlin, instructor. The following schedule will prevail at the evening classes.

Insanity Blamed For Her Action

Georgetown, Tex., Sept. 29 (AP).—A form of insanity made [illegible] Bradly Rogers incapable of distinguishing between right and [illegible] when she is alleged to have set fire to a house as part of a plan to rob a bank, her attorneys contended, completing testimony at her trial here on a charge of arson.

Otis Rogers, who secretly married the defendant on their graduation from the University of Texas two years ago, joined expert witnesses in testifying yesterday that his wife apparently was "unbalanced."

"She simply isn't there," Max Handman, Texas University professor and criminologist, told the jury.

Rogers, who gave up his law practice to come to his wife's defense as associate counsel, testified she seemed to feel that she "was incapable of wrong." This condition existed, he said, prior to December [illegible] when she is charged with burning a house near a bank at Round Rock, and of the robbery of a bank at Buda of $1,000 the next day.

Miner Pays $10 Debt at Creditor's Funeral

Fort Morgan, Colo.—The death of a creditor did not cancel the debt for Samuel Milanovich, a Serbian coal miner at Erie, Colo. When the funeral of Harry Larsen, a merchant at Erie, was being held in a church Milanovich advanced to the coffin and placed a $10 bill in the hand of the dead man.

Turning to the amazed spectators he told them that he had owed Larson for wiring his house and had not been able to see him. He wanted everyone to know that he paid. It is an ancient custom among the Serbians to pay the dead when death cuts off the opportunity to pay the living.

PARASITE OF CORN BORER IS TESTED BY GOVERNMENT

Entomologists Hope Imported Foe of the Pest Will Curb It in Time.

Washington.—If federal experiment is successful, "exeristes roborator" and "habrobracon brevicornis" will become every day names in the corn belt. They are scientific cognomen for parasites of the European corn borer.

The first resembles a wasp, and the latter a fly. In their native homes they serve as a check on excessive multiplication of the corn borer.

Armed with a slender, sharp ovipositor, the wasp-like parasite seeks out the borer and deposits its eggs near the larva, or pierces the skin of the borer and slips one or more eggs inside. Grubs from these eggs devour internal organs of the borer, each grub finally changing into a winged insect like its parent, to start the process all over again.

The fly lays its eggs on the skin of the borer to produce maggots which bore into the living bodies of their host and feed upon its vitals. They, likewise, turn into flies, whose business it is to lay more eggs on other borers.

"It is too soon to determine," entomologists say, "how effective these imported parasites will be in this country. They are absolutely and entirely harmless to everything else, but it is not known if they will thrive in our climate. Besides, these natural enemies of the borer have enemies of their own, and they must be introduced without simultaneous introduction of these latter parasites.

"It must be remembered that even in its native home a parasite seldom keeps its host in complete subjection. We may, therefore, hope for but partial control, even if present experiments are successful. It may be 15 or 20 years before they become a material aid."

A man's actions speak louder than his words. Let your daily conduct be eloquent.

Brief "Gold Rush" in Heart of Philadelphia

Philadelphia.—A "gold rush" developed in the heart of Philadelphia following reports that laborers had uncovered several hundred dollars of gold coins from earth at the eastern end of the Schuylkill river bridge.

The coins, most of them about eighty years old, were dug from a plot where earth from an excavation under a block of old houses was dumped. Later about 50 men and boys with picks and shovels were digging in the dirt, but the cache apparently was exhausted.

Several $10 and $20 gold pieces were exhibited by laborers employed to level the dirt as it was brought in trucks. It was believed the coins were hidden in the cellar of one of the houses, now demolished, three-quarters of a century ago.

Science Tests Birds for Secret of Flying

Paris.—How birds fly is now being determined by attaching minute recording instruments to homing pigeons. Their speed variations, wing strokes and other movements are measured.

Man himself may fly without a motor some day, think some commentators, as a result of this study. They say man can exercise more power than should be needed for flying, if that force can be utilized as the birds use it.

Three aerodynamics experts recently gave the Academy of Science a report on experiments with their tiny instrument. It is a mechanism 2 4-5 inches long, 1 1-5 inches wide and 1 1-5 inches high and weight two ounces.

X-Ray Clears Monkey of Ring Theft Charge

Camden, N. J.—Science recently came to the rescue of a monkey under suspicion of stealing a diamond ring from his mistress. Mrs. George Dean of Delair, N. J., missed a two-carat diamond and platinum ring. Her thoughts at once turned to Jocko, the last acquisition among the house pets, which had access to the jewel box on the bureau. Mrs. Dean and her jungle pet appeared at a hospital here and finally induced the somewhat reluctant hospital physicians to conduct Jocko to the X-Ray machine.

When the plates were developed they showed that Jocko had not swallowed the diamonds.

Country's Many Smiths

About one person in every one hundred in this country is a Smith. The last census found 1,304,300 Smiths in the United States. In other words, there are enough Smiths in the nation to replace the entire population of any one of these states: Maine, New Hampshire, Vermont, Rhode Island, Delaware, Florida, Oregon, Colorado, Utah and eight less populous Western states. The renowned Smiths occupy 17 pages in "Who's Who in America."—The Outlook.

Need Law's Restraint

What a cage is to the wild beast, law is to the selfish man. Restraint is for the savage, the rapacious, the violent; not for the just, the gentle, the benevolent. All necessity for external force implies a morbid state.—Herbert Spencer.

EASY TO TRANSFER THAT POST OFFICE

Postmaster Robert G. Hill of Grand Rapids said at a recent luncheon:

"Our postal service is excellent because excellent salaries are paid and excellent quarters maintained. It wasn't so in the past.

"There's a story about a post office inspector who on his annual visit to Paint Rock found a lot of fault with the Paint Rock postmaster. This gentleman ran the post office in a corner of his general store.

"Well, the inspector gave the Paint Rock postmaster a terrible rigging, and then said, as he got into his buggy to drive on to the next town:

"'You'll hear from the chief, Mr. Scraggs, when I get back to headquarters and report about you.'

"This was too much for Scraggs. He stalked into his general store and was back in a couple of minutes with a cigar box that contained some stamps and coppers and a couple of little memorandum books.

"'Here,' he said, 'take yer darn post office and get out.'"

Picts and Scots

In his Dictionary of Phrases and Fables, the learned Rev. Dr. E. Cobham Brewer writes upon Picts and Scots: "Pict is not the Latin pict (painted people). As Picts and Scots are always mentioned together, there is no reason why one name should be Latin and the other Gaelic. Scot is the Gaelic's god (a dweller in woods and forests), and Pict is the Gaelic pist-ist (freebooter), the two being equivalent to foresters and freebooters."

Kingston S. & L. Shows Big Gain

The board of directors of the Kingston Cooperative Savings and Loan Association held their semi-annual meeting Wednesday night at the association office, 293 Wall street, and declared the usual dividend on all shares. The reports of the secretary and treasurer show that the association has just completed the most profitable six months' period in its history, the prepaid shares especially having made a great advance during this time, due to the high rate of interest paid on these shares. The association begins a new series of shares at the next meeting, October 7, and prepaid shares taken out on or before October 14 will draw interest from the first of the month. The dividend periods are October 1 and April 1, but series are quarterly.

Sure-Footed Goral

Among the strange animals that came under the observation of Roy Andrews, who conducted an expedition into further China for the American Museum of Natural History, was the goral, a mountain goat. "I have seen a goral," says the explorer, "run at full speed down the side of a cliff that appeared to be almost perpendicular."
